

The Great Saltergate Book Amnesty

Have you ever forgotten to bring a reading book back to school?

Is there a school book lurking under your bed? Could one of our books have sneaked onto your book shelf?

Well don't worry. We are having a book amnesty. That means that on Thursday and Friday this week you can bring these naughty books back – no questions asked. In fact you will get a smiley for every one you bring.

Why not donate one of your own books? If you have read a book, liked it and would like others to enjoy it, you could put it in our donations box. We will put a sticker inside it to say that you donated it. (and you get a smiley for each book you donate) Don't forget to ask your parents first.

Please try to remember to bring books this week but if you forget or if you want to have a proper search over half term, the boxes will still be open on the first Monday back.
